Mrs. Geraldine Lang of Bay St. Louis has been named the 1988 recipient of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Outstanding Citizen Award.

Lang accepted the award and a bouquet of roses Friday night at the Chamber's annual awards banquet at the Diamondhead Country Club from John Mason, one of the Chamber's returning directors.

Lang has been instrumental in the formation of several civic organizations geared toward benefitting other people.

While serving in the Retired Senior Volunteers Program, Lang helped form Concerned Citizens of Hancock County, dedicated to advocation of changes for the poor, elderly and minorities.

Among her projects was a successful effort to get adjustments in utility rates for those unable to pay the regular Bay St. Louis rates.

It was those efforts that helped lead to her selection for the Governor's Distinguished Service Award in May 1982. The award is given for outstanding volunteer service by a private citizen.

Lang also petitioned for and recieved funds for new homes and home rehabilitation from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and serves as a member of the city's Advisory Council on housing and Gulf Coast Community Action Agency.

The award recipient has also been active in education. In addition to serving as a VISTA tutor for children during summers, she has served on Governor William Winter's Strategy Council on Kindergarten and Compulsory Education.

In that capacity, she attended workshops throughout the state and organized a forum here for legislators and educators.

When she saw a student who was not in school on a school day and found that he was a child in need of some sort of alternative education, Lang led the Concerned Citizens in organizing an Alternative School Committee that eventually included two separate divisions to look into elementary and secondary school possibilities and is now on the way to establishment of a Hancock County Alternative School Foundation.

Lang has also remained active on the RSVP Advisory Board, logging many volunteer hours and establishing new stations.

She is also involved with Mississippi Council on Aging, Red Cross, Black History Week and Headstart.

Lang is also an active member of St. Rose de Lima Church, where she has served for many years on the annual church fair committee.

Lang was among those who petitioned the Hancock County Board of Supervisors for the appointment of the first black member of the Hancock Medical Center Board of Directors.

Other awards presented Friday included the Miss Chamber Award and 1988 Dick Kosbab Memorial Education Award. Alicein Schwabacher, now a student at Western Illinois University, was recipient of the Miss Chamber Award and Cynthia Martinolich, who attends University of Southern Alabama, received the Kosbab memorial award.

Also honored was outgoing Chamber President Rick Eagan, who is being succeeded by Randy Castello.

FIRE INVESTIGATION

The Harrrison County Sheriff's Department is investigating the Thursday night fire that destroyed a residence on Bell Creek Road near the Hancock County line.

The owner of the woodframe house Mavis Ladner, was hospitalized at Hancock Medical Center after she collapsed when she returned home and found her house in flames. The cause of the 9 p.m. fire has not yet been determined. No one was injured in the blaze.

BODY IDENTIFIED

California authorities have identified a burned body found in rural Orange County as Kendrick Garland Ladner, 33, for-

Ladner, reported missing Oct. 21 by a woman who had not seen him since September, was identified through finger-prints. A Los Angeles Police Department Missing Persons Bureau spokesman said Ladner's fingerprints had been recorded when he applied for a Mississippi Alcoholic Beverage Control Board liquor permit while buying a liquor store in Hancock County.

The body was found when a motorist spotted a brush fire near Carbon Canyon Regional Park, which is located about 30 miles from Ladner's North Hollywood residence.

The fire had apparently been set to dispose of the body and the death is being investigated as a homicide, an Orange County Sheriff's Department spokesman stated.

Ladner, an actor, is the son of Virginia Guilbeau and brother of Gregory Ladner, both of Kiln.

Secondly, the site for a new county junior high-high school complex, already controversial, is not going to be changed.

The consolidation issue came up in the conversation and was an easy one to resolve. The school site was not.

When the school board originally selected the land adjacent to the existing Pearl River Community College-Hancock County Vocational-Technical School at Stennis Airpark, Port and Harbor officials became concerned that not having that land available could inhibit the development of the airport industrial park. The school board had agreed the land and would reimburse the district for costs already incurred. However, Randolph was also insisting that the vocational-technical center be SCHOOL-Page 3A

Lampley has denied that he ever paid Cannon for any legal work.

Cannon also allegedly falsified documents to prove his contention.

The district attorney's case is expected to be presented to a federal Grand Jury in Jackson next week and a preliminary hearing has been scheduled for Dec. 16.

The investigation, according to State Attorney General Mike Moore, was initiated by federal and state authorities more than two months ago.

A guard at the center notified the Hancock County Sheriff's Department Thursday morning that various articles of a woman's clothing and a pocketbook were found at a gazebo in a wooded area in front of the center, said Investigator Delbert

An officer was dispatched to pick up the items, Seay said, but at that time nothing out of the ordinary was suspected, because belongings often are left at the center, accidently.

From personal affects found in the pocketbook, sheriff's personnel identified its owner as Peggy Cywiski of Florida. They contacted her mother Thursday afternoon and learned she had left home Wednesday on her way to Texas, but had not arrived at her destination.

Sheriff's personnel, suspecting foul play was involved, spent Thursday afternoon searching the area around the center for evidence.

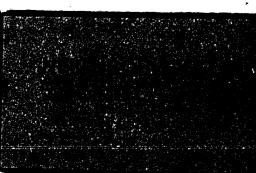

The sheriff's department was informed by Florida authorities Friday that the woman had been found that morning wandering the streets of Tallahassee, incoherent, Seay said.

According to Seay, she recently had been a witness in a crim-out, dumped her clothes at the center and went back to Florida," said Seay.

Through the Stennis Center's visitor program, local residents and guests to the area are given a unique opportunity to see America's space program at work as they tour the facility which has the mission of development testing and flight certifying all Space Shuttle main engines. The Stennis Center is unique throughout NASA in that it is host to 17 federal agencies which are involved in programs of national and international importance.

Several new exhibits have been added to the Stennis collection, according to Mack Herring, public affairs officer. "One which is very special to us," he said, "is the John C. Herring added that the exhibit was "designed to be an inspiration to young people who desire to make contributions to our state and country in public

Among the most recent additions to the visitor program is an F-1 engine on display in front of the Visitors Center. Five F-1s powered each first stage of the Saturn V rocket used during the Apollo manned lunar landing program. The center's initial mission was to acceptance-test all Saturn V first and second stages before flight. The addition of the F-1 engine brings to four the number of rocket engines on display at the center. The J-2 and H-1 engines, also used during the Saturn program, and a Space Shuttle main engine are also on display.

In addition, a 681/2 foot Jupiter-C rocket, sister ship to the vehicle which carried America's first satellite, Explorer 1, into orbit in 1958, is on display in the outdoor exhibit area. #### Food poisoning prevented with proper preparation

While food poisoning-with its vomiting, diarrhea and general weakness-is never a pleasant experience, new information indicates it can be more common and far more harmful than many people realize.

Some estimate that there are 21 million cases of food-borne diarrhea in a typical year. Others say it's more like 81 million. Whatever the numbers, they aren't good-for a generally preventable disease.

The diarrhea caused by certain food-borne "bugs" can be protracted, and studies now link food-borne organisms to some rheumatic diseases, blood poisoning and, in susceptible people, deaths.

About 400 deaths from stillbirths may result in the United States each year from Listeria monocytogenes organisms contaminating such foods as soft cheeses.

Partly as a result of the recent identification of this hazard, the Food and Drug Administration has made microbial safety of foods among the agency's highest priorities. While citizens worry about food additives-some of which prevent food poisoning—the agen-cy believes naturally occurring organisms are where the focus needs to be, especially at these holiday times when large groups are enjoying dinners, lunches and parties together.

The villians in most food poisoning outbreaks are bacteria, which include Salmonella, Shigella and Listeria. But some viruses also cause food-borne illness. Norwalk virusesfound in water and foods-are responsible for many of these cases, resulting in mild nausea, vomiting, malaise, abdominal pain, loss of appetite, headache and fever. Shellfish and salads are the foods most often implicated. An outbreak of gastroenteritis caused by a Norwalk-like virus occurred last September in Pennsylvania and Delaware affecting perhaps 5,000 people. The source of the trouble: contaminated ice.

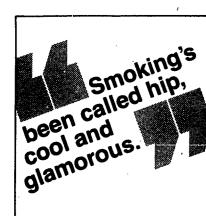

People have also become ill with hepatitis from eating raw or undercooked oysters, clams, mussels and cockels harvested from contaminated, off-limits waters by poachers.

For the cook and consumer good sanitation practices, with proper hot and cold temperatures are the keys to preventing most of this illness. We need to remember that most foods naturally can contain organisms which will make you sick unless you:

—Wash the organisms off the food and off your hands and utensils.

-Kill organisms through cooking.

-Keep them from growing by keeping the foods cold. For example, 35 percent or more of the chickens sold carry the Salmonella organism, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Undercooked chicken-and undercooked or raw eggs-can make

Now call it quits.

And if the raw chicken or egg contaminates your hands or utentsils-or a cutting boardand these are not washed and sanitized thoroughly, the Salmonella can reach and grow in other foods. This cross contamination of foods can turn raw salad vegetables into a time bomb.

Health officials check for bad practices in restaurants, but only you can inspect your own practices. Check yourself:

-Do you wash your hands, utensils and the cutting board after handling raw seafood, meats and especially poultry so they do not contaminate other foods?

Since most microorganisms grow best at room temperatures, do you know not to thaw or cool turkeys and chickens and other food at room temperature? Do you thaw the proper ways: in the refrigerator, in a bath of ice cubes, under cold running water or in a microwave oven? Do you put poultry promptly back in a refrigerator after serving? -Do you keep the refrigerator clean, and at 40 degrees or colder? And the freezer at zero or below?

Do you avoid buying foods in dented, rusty, bulging or leaky cans or cracked jars or jars with loose or bulging lids which might allow or indicate deadly botulism?

-Do you thoroughly cook fish and pork to eliminate parasites, and seafood and meats, particularly poultry, to eliminate viruses and bacteria?

Answer 'yes' to these questions and you won't have to invite the Rescue Squad to your next party.

EDITORIAL

'Designated Driver' observance set December 11-17

The ongoing struggle to remove drunken drivers from our roads will be highlighted this week in Mississippi. The theme for the annual observance of National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week will be 'Designated Driver'. Dec. 11-17 will mark those seven days when motorists throughout Mississippi are urged by this newspaper, the state government and citizen activist groups to be sure some licensed driver in every party group (including two couples just going out to dinner) abstains from alcoholic beverages to provide safe transportation home at the end of the evening.

A designated driver makes good common sense and good economic sense as well. State and local police forces in Mississippi will be especially vigilant this holiday season and arrests for drunk driving will increase.

If arrested for driving while intoxicated, you can generally count on $1,000 in attorney's fees, at least $500 in fines and court costs, plus a huge increase in car insurance premiums (if you aren't cancelled out completely), and some weekend time out there collecting trash off the highways as a possible alternative to jail. It just isn't worth it anymore. The nuisance factor alone points to the designated driver as a sensible solution.

Last year, thousands of people died on American highways. Half of these crashes involved alcoholic beverages and young people are over-represented in these crashes. It is the purpose of National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week to draw attention to these tragic facts, and warn all of our citizens that the menace of drunk driving is far from over.

It is true that many of us have promised ourselves, our families, and our friends that we will never drive after drinking. But too many of us are still unwilling when we are at a restaurant or bar or private party to stick our necks out and ask someone in the party to be the designated driver for the evening.

This may be a difficult position to take. But if we don't care enough to stand up to our friends who wrongly insist that they can drive home soberly after downing a half-carafe of wine with dinner or four beers after work, then we stand the risk of losing our friends, our own lives, and those of our loved ones.

The solution to excessive drinking and driving is selfdiscipline. You can stop drinking and driving by making an early resolution: just as you insist that everyone in the car uses safety belts, also insist that someone sober drives everyone home. Make the designated driver an accepted practice in your social group. Note: Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week is an excellent time to try it.

MHP Operation Saturation roadblocks set

The Mississippi Highway Patrol will be participating in National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week, December 11-17, by stationing Operation Saturation roadblocks in strategic locations throughout the state.

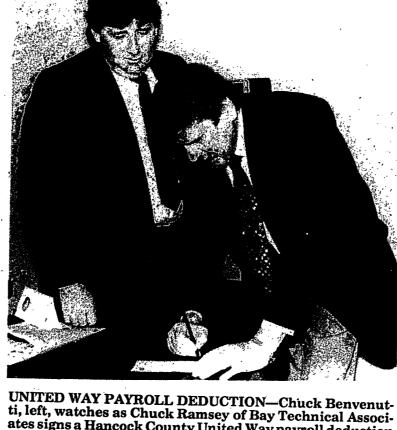

"Operation Saturation was effective earlier this year by removing drunken and drugged drivers from the highways, thereby reducing fatalities by more than 14 percent compared to 1987. The kind of success we had with this enforcement procedure in relation to saving lives speaks for itself," said Lt. Col. Billie T. Hughes, assistant Highway Patrol chief.

FROM THE CAPITOL

By Governor Ray Mabus

Mississippi's executive branch 'in search of excellence'

increasingly clear at all levels of government in recent yearsgovernment cannot do it alone: the problems facing our society are just too great.

But where we can forge partnerships between the public and private sectors, our chances of tackling problems is much

It was a broad coalition of groups that firmly backed Misincrease early this year, and it is already paying off for

Mississippi. Groups representing a wide variety of interests in Mississippi pushed for county government reform. They were right on the nose with 62 percent of Mississippians voting in favor of county government reform on

Now, I have found support throughout Mississippi for another important issue-the streamlining and reorganizing of state government.

Much of this support comes from the belief that government cannot be held accountable for Accountability is what the executive branch of state government needs, and that is what reorganization will give it.

The governor must be held accountable to the people and to the legislature for the conduct of the executive branch. This is a concept business understands well.

In the best-selling book, "In Search of Excellence," the authors sought to find the secrets to the best run companies in America. I think there are

One thing has become some important lessons for government as well.

Excellent companies are not afraid to change and try things new, while the struggling companies prefer analysis and debate to trying something out. The struggling companies are frozen by fear of change while their competition move onward and upward.

If we apply that principle to government or, more specificalbranch, we found that-for whatever reasons—we have been afraid to change and it has hurt us competitively.

I believe the very nature of democracy calls on each of us to question the institutions that serve us. That is what we are doing now—with 50 years of study and debate behind us—in attempting to reorganize the executive branch of state government in Mississippi.

Another lesson to be learned from 'In Search of Excellence' is that good companies get results because their structures encourage planning and a free exchange of informationrather than stifling this process with a bureaucracy that is rigid and resistant to decision making.

State government has a direct effect on the ability of business in Mississippi to prosper, and that means jobs. Reorganization can make government work better for individuals and business alike.

Now may be our best chance in a half century to tune up state government for the 21st Century.

Congratulations are in order for Mrs. Geraldine Lang upon being named the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's 1988 Outstanding Citizen.

Geraldine is very deserving of this prestigious award and joins an elite group of Hancock Countians previously recognized.

There are so many worthwhile endeavours in which Mrs. Lang has been involved with in the years I have known her. Many of the endeavours were spearheaded by Mrs. Lang.

As an example, her interest in education is not in words only.

She is a leader in establishing a Hancock County Alternative Schooling Foundation, tutors children after school and during the summer as a VISTA Volunteer, and served on Governor William Winter's Strategy Council on Kindergarten and Compulsory Education to mention a few of her endeavours in regard to education.

Whenever or wherever there is a need in our community, Geraldine always appears to be at the forefront.

The above is reinforced by her receiving the Governor's Distinguished Service award for voluntary citizen participation in 1982.

Geraldine has been an Outstanding Citizen in Hancock County for many years.

While on the subject of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Annual Banquet, we sure want to also recognize Miss Cynthia Martinolich for receiving the Dick Kosbab Memorial Education Award.

The University of South Alabama freshman is a graduate of Our Lady Academy and is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Martinolich of Bay St. Louis.

Miss Martinolich is so deserving of the award because of her many achievements as an OLA student.

The award she received is in memory of a very good friend of mine, Dick Kosbab, who worked very hard to promote educational excellence in our county.

Special recognition was also given to Alicen Schwabacher, 1988 Miss Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. Her award was accepted by her mother Sherry Schwabacher, as she is a student at Western Illinois University.

Friday night was a busy night as I had to split my time between two functions as the Clement R. Bontemps American Legion Post No. 139 held its annual Christmas Party also.

Time is beginning to run short on Christmas shopping as the big day is only two weeks away.

We do want to urge everyone to Shop at Home as it really helps a community.

A person can purchase just about any gift right here a home, so there is really no need to have to travel distances to shop.

It always amazes me at how many times a dollar turns around after it is spent in a community.

Side Street Crossings

By Dena Bisnette

Two of my dearest friends left Bay St. Louis last week, and the last thing we did was promise to keep in touch.

Bill and Garry, after living in Cedar Point for four years, have job opportunities in Rhode Island. It's going to seem unusual not to be able to go over to their place on my way home from school, prop my feet on their coffee table, and say scandalous things about friends and enemies, or maybe plan our latest project.

Garry left me a project he had gotten me somewhat involved in--revival of the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre--which is a serious matter because we firmly believe every community ought to have such an organization.

Bill left me two dozen boxes to store and ship to him at a later date, a forwarding address for the mail and a couple of pieces of furniture. They left me several very nice books, all the surplus kitchen equipment that didn't sell when Garry got yard sale fever, and their favorite cat, Amstel, who spends most of his time crouched in a cabinet in the den and shows no desire whatsoever to become acquainted with our two dogs.

Mostly, though, there was that promise to write or call, which was the one thing I wouldn't have wanted them to leave me without. Garry will probably write, but Bill will call because he is always on the phone with somebody.

The fact that they left just before Christmas reminds me of the Christmas cards I have sitting in my kitchen. I'll send them one this year. It's time to send them all, past time to send some of them to the more distant places.

Christmas cards are my best way to keep in touch. In today's overly mobile society, that's sometimes the only way to keep up with the one or two high school classmates you really liked, but who moved somewhere else the day after graduation; or the college roommate who went back home to Japan; or the guy who used to share a bag of chips with you at lunch time when you both made $500 a month and it was the best you could do for lunch on the 29th. Speeding along in my lifestyle like many other people do, pushed along by the concerns of career, graduate school and trying to be something at least approaching a good wife, I seem to think of calling people when it's past 10 p.m. where they are and it's a weeknight, meaning they work the next day, so I don't call as often as I should.

Despite the two partially used boxes of pretty stationery in my desk, I have fallen off on writing letters as well, and those that are written are scrawled off at the public laundromat or while waiting for the eye doctor. Although I'm not as bad as my mother, who once wrote me a letter on four strips of adding machine tape, I do use whatever paper is available and I think that makes the letters look like they were done in a

For some reason it's easier to write a note on the back of a Christmas card with a holiday design cheering you on.

It's also easier to use a Christmas card when you're writing to somebody you hardly know anymore. Only a handful of my family has migrated to Mississippi and years and years go by between the times I see some of them. On a card you don't have to say much to somebody you don't know well.

A card means so much. I got a card from one of my former students; hearing that Rhonda was about to finish college and strike out on her own made me proud to have been associated with her.

The day of my wedding, which was also my 29th birthday, I got a card from a friend I had known since 1971 but had lost track of in 1982. I found her again in a five-minute encounter at a class reunion, yet she wrote to say she had never forgotten my birthday the very year it was lost in the shuffle of other_excitement.

I have talked to many people whose day has been brightened because somebody from far away or long ago let them know they hadn't been forgotten. don't know the tradition behind sending Christmas cards, but I do know why they're important. Don't neglect sending your cards this year. And while you're doing it, show some Christmas spirit--let somebody know they haven't been forgotten.

Demand for firewood increasing

Brrr...It's cold! Throw another log on the fire and relax in front of the good old fireplace. What would we do without firewood? Probably convert to gas or electric heat, but that's another story. Firewood-let's talk firewood.

When I was growing up we never had any trouble finding firewood. I'd go out to the "back forty," find a big red oak, then cut it, buck it, split it, stack it, and at last, burn it. We never thought about running out of firewood back then.

Nowadays, the firewood supply is not so easy to come by. With the popularity of wood burning stoves comes an increased demand for firewood. The forestland owner is beginning to see a new forest product market open up—the firewood market.

Many folks are finding that what was once left laying in the woods has become quite merchantable! Normally, unmerchantable hardwoods are deadened in our pine plantations. Also, limbs and tops remaining after a timber sale are often piled and burned prior to replanting. The demand for firewood has created a market for what foresters call logging slash and debris. Firewood dealers are popping up all over the state. Of course, the closer to an urban area, the better the market for firewood. But even in our rural areas, the demand for firewood is increasing. If you're interested in the firewood market and would like to know more about how to improve your timber by managing your forestland for firewood, as well as sawtimber and pulpwood, I urge you to stop by and see me, or call 467-4728. The way I see it, you have nothing to lose, and possible a few bucks to gain! I hope to see you soon.

The supervisors can not afford to move the vo-tech center at this time, Board President Ronald Cuevas said.

In addition, he asked for two conditions with which he feels the school district would be unable to comply--he wants the school district's tax levy to be reduced by an amount equal to the amount the supervisors would have to raise property taxes if they complied with Randolph's wishes.

The second condition was that the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District do the same, so that taxes will not be raised in the event of consolidation.

Randolph said he feels the first of the two conditions could be met, and that the supervisors could borrow the money to move the vo-tech center, paying off the loan when the existing building is sold and then dropping the necessary tax inccrease.

There was no one present from the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District to moved at the county's expense.

Due to planned expansions at the vo-tech center that will occur through the junior college, Randolph has said he will not agree to have the new school located anywhere except adiacent to that facility.

Dr. Ted Alexander, the head of Pearl River Community College, was unable to attend both the Thursday and Friday work sessions but had reportedly agreed to consider moving.

The port commission, according to Olsen and its president, Ronald Artigues, was at first willing to buy the land and market the existing vo-tech building, but not at the price Randolph wants.

Randolph wants $174,000 for the land and $121,000 for costs already incurred for engineering, site clearing and other services.

The commission was willing provide any input on the second condition Friday.

Artigues, Olsen and Port and Harbor Commission Attorney Robert Genin ended Friday's meeting by saying they felt the discussion was going nowhere and that if Randolph would not change his price, they were ready to leave.

Time is putty

By Father Jerome LeDoux

There is no gift like it, because all the other gifts in our life, even life itself, are useless without it. We need time to live, time to think, say, do and enjoy. In short, time is the putty available to us to shape every detail of our lives.

Just as it is true that "there is an appointed time for everything" (Eccl. 3:1), so is it equally true that we cannot afford to squander time, since it is available but once in all eternity.

Millennia come and go, holding somewhere within them a modest flash of time which we can finger to fashion memories. Whatever span is allowed to us is so much putty which we would be fools not to shape into memories full of meaning and fulfillment

Our modest portion of time enables us to mold precious memories of births and baptisms into various branches of our family, memories of birthday celebrations for flourishing family members, of nuptials, of graduations, of individual and/ or family accomplishment, of family reunions, of good fortune and racy bits of serendipity.

Time is the potter's clay which we must seize eagerly to shape and chronicle the numerous items and nuances of our family history. That history will weave itself around all the above-mentioned events from new births through each personal experience of life.

With this clay in our hands. we can form a treasure trove of family tradition, history, information, anecdotes, hilarious incidents, photographs, celebrations and activities. Once celebrations and activities are over, they transfer from the treasure trove of live action to that of prized memories.

Time is the putty with which we form, nourish and fulfill the friendships which enrich our lives by enhancing our family base and broadening our personal capacity for selfless love.

With the priceless commodity of time at our disposal, we enjoy the singular privilege of working carefully at each of our human relationships, reveling in the heart-throbbing ties of family, and exploring the expansive reaches of friendship.

Time is certainly the potter's clay of marriage. Unattended, this clay tends to crack and crumble in most marriages as time goes on. But, given attention, care and the daily effort of the putty of time. Personality innumerable minor adjustments, it shapes up into a thing of beauty.

Without time, love cannot grow and bloom, nor can it even fail. With time, love will gradually atrophy and die through neglect, or it will blossom and mature through painstaking molding.

How else can two very different persons, in many cases far apart in temperament and habits, become as one person in their goals, in their thrust, in their emotional life, in their spiritual beliefs and in their total sharing of life?

The very differences which can weaken and destroy the wife-husband relationship can be fashioned into strengths by time, the putty of life.

differences, for instance, can trigger stresses, but these are desirable stresses which can help to improve us.

And so is life not only in marriage, but likewise in friendship just as in any human relation of blood, religion, work or recreation. The putty of time allows us to mold into positive all the negative things in our lives, and to shape into what is good and wholesome all the evil which surrounds us.

Urgency is the name of the game, and time is its principal tool. Even though it is wise to plan for the morrow, almost all our concentration must focus on today, for it is today alone on which God has guaranteed us

American Legion Auxiliary 77

Mayor Victor Franckiewicz of Bay St. Louis and Mayor John Longo of Waveland have a proclamation for the holidays. This is a great thing, and to add to the proclamation-members of the American Legion Auxiliary of Waveland are supporting the Just Say No' to drugs the week of Dec. 12, but hope it will continue on Several members of the auxiliary have made round circles of red poster paper and have printed on the words 'Just Say No.' With the support of the principals of some of the schools, the auxiliary has made enough to take care of the children and staff, with hopes that are persons will wear them.

The ladies have worked hard to have the circle ready. Betty LaFontaine, Marjorie Leech and Irene Giaconi have spent many hours to get these ready with help from Helen Rohrbacker, Elizabeth Bryant, Gloria Norton and president, Shirley Cox. Some of the husbands took time to help and our thanks to Andy and Jack. If only one of the circles helps, it will be well worth it.

Gulf Coast Newcomers

The Topaz Room at the Biloxi Hilton on Hwy. 90 will be the scene of the noon Christmas luncheon of the Gulf Coast Newcomers Club on Dec. 13. A social hour at 10:30 will precede the traditional turkey noon luncheon. Afterwards, the Biloxi High School Madrigal Singers will present a Christmas program which will include a sing-along. This group, directed by Hilda Barnes, will respresent the USA at the French Bicentenial in July 1989. The choir will spend four days in Paris and sing in Notre Dame Cathedral. All members are reminded that reservations are necessary and to bring non-perishable food items to fill the Christmas basket for the club's needy family. Also, clothing and gifts for a family of five are welcomed.

Members are asked to bring a $5 wrapped gift to be exchanged with other club members. There will be numerous door prizes and other surprise entertainment.

Any woman who has moved to the Gulf Coast during the past three years is eligible for membership in the club. For further information call Lois Boren, 388-9344, or Marge Justice, 875-9310.

Hancock Women's Club

Chappy's Restaurant in Long Beach was the setting for the Christmas party and luncheon of the Hancock Women's Club on Thursday, Dec. 8. There were 39 present, including guests Ruth Fleury, Marj Jones, Pat Lanham, Kathleen Ridgley, Annette Saucier and Sandi Morrison.

Lois Cripple, president, was in charge of the meeting. She announced that arrangements are being made with the Forestry Service to plant a white ash tree on the hospital grounds in February in memory of Roger Harnett, husband of HWC member Lillian Harnett, who passed away recently. Details will be available next month.

The club membership voted to donate $100 each to the Salvation Army and Goodwill in time for use at Christmas.

The drawing was held for the handmade afghan donated by Theda Fischer, which was raffled off to provide money for Christmas gifts for needy children. It was won by Alice Winchester. The club will spend $350 and wishes to thank all members of the public who bought tickets and made it possible for this to be done.

Cripple asked any members who wished to assist her in purchasing the gifts to meet at Kmart at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 14, or to meet at Julia Loup's home, 620 Central Avenue, Waveland, at 10 a.m. on Friday, Dec. 16 to wrap them.

Door prizes were won by Clytee Mayfield, Joanne Casselberry, Ethel Crowley, Pat Lanham, Joyce Hasling, Ruth Fleury, Marj Thomas, Sandi Morrison, Lorraine Dressel and Marie Braselman.

Fun and Games Day will not be held in December. Next month's meeting will be Jan. 12 at the Waveland Library.

Diamondhead Art Association

For more than a year, Dorothy Booth has faithfully kept our community informed about the Art Association's monthly activities. Starting this month, I will be the reporter and only hope I can do as well.

Tommy Thompson, a charter member, has been in the hospital, and we miss his contributions to our meetings...so get well quickly, Tommy. The Seafood Museum in Biloxi has named Tommy their consultant for scale model ships. In November, Tommy demonstrated his considerable skill and talent at a special opening show held in this very interesting museum.

Although Jerry Rewshew is too busy to attend most meetings, Charlotte isn't the only talent in the family. Jerry has donated one of his prize-winning model ships to the New Orleans Museum of Art. You can see Jerry's magnificant work on display along with the Cai thage exhibit and the Cartier Jewels from the Lindemann Collection. Charlotte brought along Jerry's contemporary 'Street Scene' done on paneling in acrylic and painted for their patio. It's a winner, too!

Dorothy Booth hosted the November meeting by holding a drawing for a handmade Christmas wreath. Today she showed a painting of a 'Wedding Scene,' done by two students at Annunciaton School. Dorothy purchased it at a school fair eight years ago and is donating it back to Annunciation for permanent hanging.

Anne Worthington is a fine portrait artist, as is Sandy Smith. They both showed another subject they excel in doing...beautiful nudes done with great sensitivity.

Ida Tolbert is proud of husband Bart, and it is easy to see why. Ida brought along an example of his woodworking skill in a mirrored shelf, crafted of pecky chestnut wood. Ida has lived and traveled around the world and she frequently shares her many found treasures. In November she showed some wonderful ebony carvings from Nigeria, as well as a 'sample' tray showing the many exotic colors and grain of wood. For Christmas gifts, Ida makes cinnamon brooms and pressed flowers on lace, very delicate and victorian in oval frames.

In November, Jerry Plante held a demonstration on making linoleum block Christmas cards and showed the finished product at today's meeting. Jerry does wood carving too, and shared his efforts with two basswood carvings. His oldest son, Michael, a commercial artist, has Dad's artistic gift. It is demonstrated by the sandblasted wood portrait of his wife and daughter shown by Jerry. If you should see Jerry on the golf course, you can't miss him; his cart is brightly painted by son Michael.

Lorraine Paillet is an excellent fiber artist. Her overwhelming talent and craftsmanship are evident in the abstract petit point landscape done in brilliant color touched with gold threads.

The second piece shown by Lorraine is 'Elephants,' taken from an old Persian print, done in petit point and made even more interesting by the addition of tiny antique Persian bells and ankle chain.

She and husband Norm hosted an afternoon presentation on the history and story of Chanukah, a Jewish festival beginning on the 25th day of the month of Kislev and lasting eight days. It commemorates the victory of the Maccabees over the Syrians in 165 B.C. and the rededication of the Temple of Jerusalem. It is also called The Feast of Light.' Thanks for sharing.

Coella hosted December's meeting with refreshments and the presentation of her 1988 Christmas card giving to each attending member.

This year's card, the sixth in a series using Native American themes, is a tableta. A tableta is the headress worn by the Native Americans in their social and ceremonial dances. The print is made using three plates, carefully registered and run through the press for each color. Some Diamondhead residents actually have all six in this series. Coella will be printing a limited edition poster for Diamondhead's 1989 Mardi Gras. If you would like one reserved, you may call 255-1233.

A still life watercolor was Evelyn Thompson's contribution for today's meeting. In delicate mauves and greens, it is alive with inner light.

Nel Ducomb is famous for her fabulous paper earrings. She shows us a new pair each month. Charlotte Rewshew usually buys them right off Nel's ears. And Nel, it was fun trying to figure out how the rice tied, batiked, silk scarf was made.

Remember, our meetings are always at 1 p.m. the first Monday of each month. Please join us if you are interested in fine art and crafts.

Jan. 2 is our next meeting. Nel Ducomb will host with a demonstration and lecture on 'Color Theory.'

The February meeting, Monday, Feb. 6, 1 p.m., will be hosted by Dorothy Booth and the Gulf Coast members of the Southern Poetry Association. Members will also share by reading some of their recent writings.

Happy New Year!

'S-e-r-v-i-c-e' spells the competitive edge for local small businesses

°G-13

Why shop at home?
A myriad of answers range from 'convenience' to the obvious asset to the community's tax base, to a lesser recognized 'small town advantage'—personal attention.

Successful small shops in the Bay St. Louis-Waveland area remain that way by offering amenities not found in large department stores or sprawling shopping malls, where hundreds of shops vie for the dollar.

Distinctive, original (and often free ) gift wrap, special ordering, and pleasant personalities of store personnel are motivations listed by local shoppers.

Martha Murphy of Henderson Point, a frequent shopper at Ellen Kane Gifts in Bay St. Louis, favors the "individualistic" assortment of merchandise. "You can tell that someone put a lot of thought into the selection," she said, also noting creative displays of items.

The owner-manager can also make the difference—as evidenced in The Princess Shoppe in Bay St. Louis, where Jane Ann Fahey comes to know most of her customers as friends. Keeping a mental file of their favorite colors, fabrics and styles, she often orders garments at market with specific women in mind.

A good assortment of specialty merchandise can also lure prospective customers. "I have tried to stock my store like a catalog, without catalog prices," according to Lydia Schultz of Lydia's Audubon Shoppe. "If people would take the time to investigate some of our local businesses, they would find most of the items they need can be purchased right here in their own backyard."

She reports "a lot" of out-of-town shoppers, who find an interesting array of items to please bird-lovers.

Also reporting a number of out-of-town customers is bridal shop owner Yvonne Sallinger of Bridalaire, who attributes her success to the personal attention factor.

"Many women mention that they appreciate our attention to detail and the time we are willing to spend with them in making their selections," she added.

Nancy Uram of The Kid Company seeks out small 'cottage industry' lines at market, to have different and unique merchandise. "You have to tailor your inventory to your customer," she said, adding that she stocks some products simply as a service to the community.

simply as a service to the community.

Not only are local shop owners willing to spend time helping customers to select their purchases, but a few will even deliver them (beautifully wrapped), including Seymours Jewelry and Gifts, The Family Tree and Ellen Kane Gifts.

WORKING TOGETHER

"The key to successful small businesses is a referral system, where business owners support rather than work against each other. A good example in this community are the antique dealers," according to Libby Roland, Hancock County Chamber of Commerce executive director

Small businesses are offered free advice by volunteers who man an Office of Economic and Development Services in the Port and Harbor building, where the Small Business Association (SBA), Gulf Coast Business Service, SCORE and Small Business Development Center counsel start-ups, expansions and more.

The chamber set up the office and schedules appointments during the month, according to Roland.

The Bay St. Louis Business Association seeks to stimulate interest in the business community by staging events in the downtown area to generate traffic.

Several free concerts have been presented by the organization—with a day-long activity scheduled for December 17, according to Jim Thompson, president. "A Day in the Bay" will feature tours by the Hancock County Historical Society, Christmas caroling and 'open house' at several businesses.

"We are working together to get people to see what is here," he said. "There is a great deal of pride in the business community here."

Recipe for Community Growth

By Lydia Schultz

5 cups of support from each and every individual

4 pounds of understanding that each person owning a business is in need of support from each and every individual

6 cups of kindness...for every one you meet is fighting a hard battle. Remember: everyone has a cross to bear; some are styrofoam and some are concrete. But a cross to bear is still a burden.

Be sure to remove the shells from kindness. They are not always readily apparent and come in various forms. Sometimes in dislikes, untruths, etc.

Mix all of the above together. Set aside and let it blend for a while.

While that blends, put together the City Councils of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, and the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

Take portions of the first three ingredients (support, understanding, kindness) and add to the Councils, Supervisors and Chamber.

Let this sit for a while to blend thoroughly.

This part of the recipe is very important. It must be done quickly yet gently to avoid a flop.

Add: 2 cups of realization that businesses locally have a lot to offer. Just as much or more as many businesses 20 miles away. Add the realization that each dollar spent locally turns over seven (7!) times within the community.

Blend together all ingredients. Top with an abundance of appreciation from the local business owners and the schools that local businesses are constantly called upon to support (they can do this with a smile when local people support them).

Now you have a lovely community growing in a healthy spirit. handle gently. It is to be nurtured.

Groomsmen were Audwin

First Presbyterian Church in Bay St. Louis was the setting for the November 26 afternoon marriage of Lorelei Ling of Aguilar, Colo. and Charles

Hugh Hanson of Weston, Colo. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Ling of Waveland. The groom is the son of Mrs. Mary Hanson of Atlan-

Decorating the church were window wreaths and pew markers of magnolia leaves, baby's breath and ivory satin bows on grapevine.

Nuptial music was provided by Jeanne Smith of Waveland. organist, and Carl and Charlene Fasshauer of Waveland, Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of ivory taffeta. A basque bodice overlaid with schiffli lace embellished with pearls featured a scalloped V-neckline and deep V-back with a butterfly bow fastened above a chapel length train. A headpiece of lace and pearls held a fingertip veil of illusion.

The bride carried a freestyle bouquet of blue iris, rose-hued alstromeria and baby's breath with a touch of wheat.

Thea Levenhagen of New Orleans was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kristin Ling of Athens, Ga., sister of the bride, and Annie Wilkinson Ling of Chattanooga, Tenn., sister-in-law of the bride.

The attendants were attired in tea length gowns of irides-cent royal blue taffeta, each

Duke chairs Hancock Chapter Lung Association

"Christmas Seals this year are colorful, useful and help fight lung diseases," said Mrs. Elda Duke of Waveland, chairman of the Hancock County Chapter and member of the state board of the Mississippi Lung Association. Each sheet of the 1988 seals has six matching gift tags along with 36 holiday seals. But more importantly, Christmas Seal-supported programs provide help and hope for lung health today and in the future.

Christmas Seal dollars provide patient services, public and professional education and medical research. Each program is special and designed to prevent and control lung diseases. There is much to done to reduce the terrible consequences of lung diseases and their causes.

Christmas Seals are a tradition in l'ancock County, supporting Mississippi Lung Association's year-round fight against lung diseases such as emphysema, chronic bronchitis, lung cancer, tuberculosis, asthma, lung diseases of the newborn and occupational lung diseases. Christmas Seal programs also focus on medically recognized health hazards such as cigarette smoking and air pollution.

"Lung health is a vital matter to the local County Lung Chap-ter and Christmas Seal volunteers," Duke added. "We urge Mississippians to take steps to take care of their lungs, to recognize early symptoms of lung problems and seek medical help promptly and to answer the Christmas Seal letter and join the fight for lung health."
"All local contributions are

AN AUTHORIZED MERCEDES-BENZ DEALER'S BELLEE:

THE ONLY AUTOMOBILE THAT COMES CLOSE TO MERCEDES-BENZ IS ANOTHER MERCEDES-BENZ.

CONTRARY to what some automakers would have you believe, only one automobile can be fairly compared to the Mercedes-Benz. And that's another Mercedes-Benz. The reason is simple. Mercedes-Benz is the undisputed industry standard for automotive quality, prestige, technology and engineering excellence. Other automakers believe this as well. Which is why they are constantly comparing themselves to us. But ask yourself this: Isn't it more sensible to drive the one automobile everyone else is trying so hard to emulate? Test-drive a Mercedes-Benz today and discover the difference.

Garden club seeks decoration entries

The Bay-Waveland Garden Club announces its Christmas Lighting and Decorating Contest for 1988 test for 1988.

First held in 1953, this annual event has grown each year, and now includes several categories of awards in both commercial and residential classes. Lighting displays, religious themes and old-fashioned Christmas are some suggested styles.

Recognizing both the cost and effort required for major decorations, this year entries are invited in a door decoration class. This has become a distinctive style in recent years.

Entries will be judged on the evenings of Dec. 19 and 20. Certificates will be awarded to participants and the first place entry in both commercial and residential will be pictured in The Sea Coast Echo.

Due to the number of entries expected, the contest is necessarily limited to those within the city limits of Bay St. Louis and Waveland. This year's committee chairperson for the event is Cindy Lowe, who may be reached at 467-4827 for information and to enter the contest.
